The judgment of the district court is AFFIRMED. -13- McDEVITT, Circuit Judge, dissenting. Because I believe the district court was correct in excluding evidence about the child abuse, I respectfully dissent. Ms. Wright attempted to demonstrate that her son's autism was, in reality, caused by the same brain injury that she herself received when she was nine months old. Significantly, she offered no evidence about the date of the injury or her son's subsequent development. Thus, the jury could only speculate on the birth date and developing age of the son at the time the injury occurred. As the majority noted, expert testimony on scientific theory is useful only to establish a natural cause-and-effect link between one event and an alleged injury. See Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals, Inc., 509 U.S. 579 (1993). The expert testimony therefore must be based upon hard scientific evidence, not speculation. A plaintiff is not entitled to rely on speculation, but must produce sufficient evidence to "render the evidence of causality rationally probable 1cb139a0ed
